Fertilisers facing REACH, costs, restrictions, and bureaucracy

Conference

Friday 8th February 2008 – ore 9:30 am – 12:30 am
Fiera di Verona, Centrocongressi Europa, Sala Respighi

In the latest three years a clear trend in fertilisers use reduction has affected the Italian agriculture. Unfortunately better fertilisation practices are not responsible for that as it should be hoped for, but a series of problems related to farm produce and fertiliser price trend, as well as new regulations too often with a lack of clearness and coordination.

We can mention the EU Regulation concerning animal residues, the new Italian fertiliser Regulation (D. Lgs. 217/02006) which has amended (not always in better) the rules under which fertiliser can be placed on the market, the “Nitrates Directive” and its different way of application by the Italian regional authorities.

Last but not least, the REACH, which, tough with the right aim of getting the maximum safety level in the chemicals use, involves a lot of additional bureaucratic costs which unavoidably will be shifted to the final users.

A clear and qualified Information is essential in order to avoid all these problems hit our industry, therefore ARVAN s.r.l. has organised, as a Fieragricola 2008 event, a conference on the main issues presently affecting and worrying the world of fertilisers.
